18 Candidates File Petitions Here

3 DEMOCRATS, ONE REPUBLICAN RUN FOR MAYOR

Only Two GOP Candidates To Seek 12 Jobs Open In City Government

Eighteen candidates—16 Democrats and two Republicans—will seek nominations at the May 6 primary for 12 political posts in Circleville.

The deadline for the filing of nominating petitions arrived at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Two Democrats and one Republican seek the post of mayor and four Democrats are in the race for the three councilman-at-large posts. Two aspirants will clash for the Democratic nomination for councilman in the Third ward, and two Democrats will vie for their party nomination as councilman in the Fourth ward.

Joe Glitt, Republican candidate for mayor, and John W. Eshelman, Republican candidate for councilman in the First ward, are the only Republicans who filed petitions.

A full list of the petitions on file Thursday follows:

- For Mayor
- Thurman I. Miller (D); Joe E. Brink (D); and Joe Glitt (R).
- For City Treasurer
- Everett P. Stocklen (D) (incumbent).
- For City Auditor
- Miss Lillian M. Young (D) (incumbent).
- For City Solicitor
- George E. Gerhardt (D) (incumbent).
- For President of Council
- Luther Bower (D).
- For Council At Large
- Ray B. Anderson (D) (incumbent); Robert E. Adkins (D); William M. Reid (D) (incumbent); and Ralph E. Wallace (D).
- For Council
- First Ward—Charles A. Graham (D); and John W. Eshelman (R) (incumbent).
- Second Ward—Ray Cook (D) (incumbent).
- Third Ward—Fred D. Brown (D); and George L. Crites (D) (incumbent).
- Fourth Ward—Boyd L. Horn (D) (incumbent); and Charles I. Mumaw, Sr., (D).

From the line-up it will be noted that Glitt is unopposed for the Republican mayoralty nomination and that Miller and Brink will compete for the Democratic nomination for mayor. Treasurer Stocklen, Auditor Young and Solicitor Gerhardt, all Democrats, are all unopposed for re-election next Nov. 4. Anderson, Adkins, Reid and Wallace will clash for the three Democratic nominations for councilman-at-large with no Republicans in that race. The only ward councilman primary competition will be in the Third and Fourth wards.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Admiral Byrd reaching his old camp in Little America reports finding the buildings vacant. Three covered wagons are leaving New York tomorrow.

The housing shortage is so serious that the wife who goes home to mother now phones first to see if mother has a home.

One question seldom propounded is, "where were all the people living in 1942 who have no place to live in 1947?"

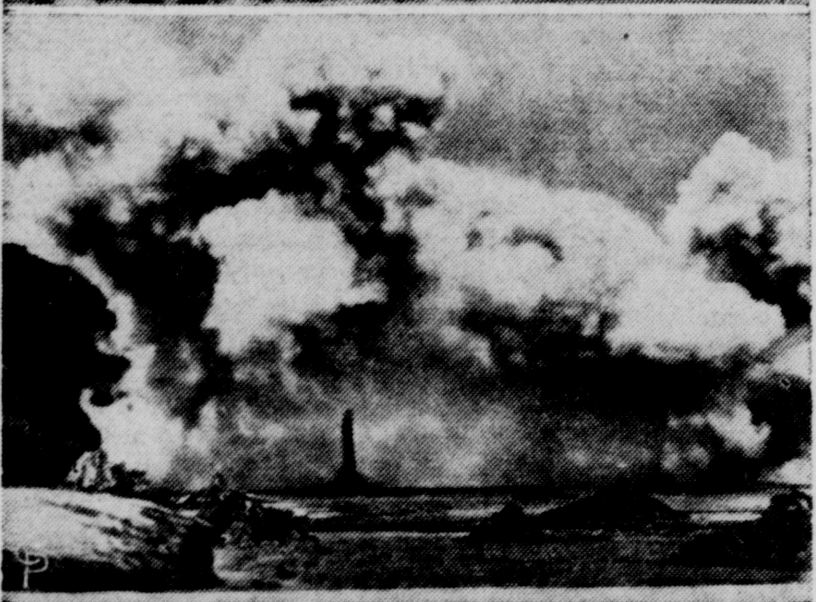

Our guest experts are cupid and the stork who know most of the right answers to the riddle.

When a man puts two dollars in a marriage license he also is buying a piece of the housing shortage and many a license has been issued since '42.

Nor has the stork stopped to estimate the cubic footage available in one room and bath.

And while cupid and the stork go placidly about their affairs everybody blames "the politicians" for the housing shortage.

SOLONS WARNED TO LIMIT LAWS

Former Member Of War Labor Board Opposes Outlawing Closed Shop

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—A former industry member of the war labor board cautioned congress today to limit labor legislation to "equalizing the rules of collective bargaining" with no immediate bans on the closed shop or industry-wide contracts.

Vincent P. Ahearn, now a management member of the government's labor management advisory committee, turned thumbs down on two other GOP proposals in testimony before the senate labor committee.

Ahearn said it would be a "mistake" to create either an independent mediation board as a substitute for the present conciliation service or a new system of labor courts.

His testimony was given as the house labor committee heard Rep. Case (R) S. D., urge enactment of his vetoed 1946 labor bill in order to achieve "an industrial peace with justice."

Ahearn declared that until congress has discharged its "first obligation" to balance the rules of bargaining it should "defer action on the closed shop issue." To outlaw thousands of closed shop contracts on short notice, he said, would produce "many complications."

DO NOT WORRY, YOU MAY CAUSE A BAY WINDOW

CHICAGO, Feb. 6—A bay window no longer need be a dead giveaway for a heavy-handed eater.

That was the theory today of Dr. S. Charles Freed, San Francisco, writing in the current issue of the journal of the American Medical association.

Dr. Freed argues that obesity may be caused by emotional strain—worry, fear, insecurity.

He questions that over-eating always results from a glandular disturbance.

The doctor wrote that certain psychological factors intensify a person's appetite for food.

LANDLORDS URGE CHANGE IN RENT CONTROL LAWS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—A landlords' spokesman today urged congress to revise rent control legislation to assure property owners a "fair return" on their investment.

William E. Russell, chairman of the New York City Metropolitan fair rent committee, testifying before a senate Banking subcommittee, also asked a flat 15 per cent rent ceiling increase and removal of controls on new rental construction.

ANOTHER COLD WAVE SLATED TO ARRIVE FRIDAY

Snow Complicates Situation As Thousands Remain Idle With Gas Low

Snow Thursday threatened to make Circleville area highways hazardous and the weatherman further increased complaints about the weather by predicting a new cold wave.

Temperatures were higher Thursday morning and were expected to stay up through Thursday night but Friday near zero marks are expected again.

The second onslaught—coming out of Alaska's Yukon—was so close behind the first that no appreciable relief will be felt over the state before Sunday, forecasters said.

A new burst of near-zero cold, coupled with snow flurries and strong winds, meant a continuation of Ohio's acute gas shortage and the continued layoff of more than 50,000 workers in industries where gas supplies have been restricted.

Meanwhile, additional plants were closing down as the situation failed to improve and the natural gas supplies renewed their pleas for conservation.

Ohio Fuel Gas company officials here stated the seriousness of the gas situation remain virtually unchanged in view of the forecast for more bitter cold. They urged continued cooperation of industrial and home consumers in using the minimum amount of gas.

Snow falling as far south as Cincinnati this morning was adding to the general distress brought on by the prolonged cold spell.

Northeastern Ohio was getting more snow on top of depths ranging from four inches at Cleveland to 10 inches in Geauga county. Highways were drifted and

U. S. ADMITTED AS PRINCIPAL IN PORTAL CASE

DETROIT, Feb. 6—The United States government was admitted as a principal in the celebrated Mt. Clemens Pottery company case today.

Federal Judge Frank A. Picard granted the government's petition to intervene on its contention that the public interest is involved.

By granting the petition, the court cleared the way for the case to go back to the supreme court. It put the government in position to appeal any decision the Detroit judge may hand down on portal pay claims of the pottery workers.

It is the government's second intervention in the case which resulted in nearly five billion dollars in portal pay claims by CIO unions across the nation.

ARMY COLONEL ACCUSED OF DIAMOND SMUGGLING

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6—United States customs officials in San Francisco today awaited further word from Gen. Douglas MacArthur before pressing possible diamond smuggling charges against Col. Edward J. Murray, beribboned veteran of two world wars.

Colonel Murray, a member of General MacArthur's finance section at supreme allied headquarters in Japan, was placed under "technical" arrest after customs inspectors found in his possession $250,000 worth of undeclared diamonds which he called "legitimate loot."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—Gerhardt Eisler today was branded a "dangerous terrorist" by his sister, Elfriede Eisler, testifying that she is in the United States under the alias Ruth Fisher, declared that ever since she had learned her brother was in America "I have been working to expose him and his dirty work."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—Gerhardt Eisler, branded by the FBI as the maker of Communist policy in the United States, today was recommended to be held in contempt of congress for refusing to testify before the house un-American activities committee.

Paul Bixler Resigns As Football Coach At Ohio State University

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 6—Paul O. Bixler resigned today as Ohio State university's head football coach to become head coach at Colgate university.

The announcement did not come as a surprise since rumors that Bixler would make the change had been current since the Ohio State mentor conferred last November with Andy Kerr, who is retiring in June after 18 years at Colgate.

Athletic officials at Ohio State said that no action had been taken yet to name a successor to Bixler.

However, the name of Wesley Fessler, now football mentor at the University of Pittsburgh and one of Ohio State's all-time gridiron greats, immediately entered the speculation.

Fessler was a teammate and roommate of Richard C. Larkins, who will succeed the retiring L. W. St. John as the Bucks' athletic director next Summer.

Bixler's resignation was accepted "with regret" by St. John and Larkins. In his resignation, the coach emphasized that he was leaving Ohio State only because of his close relationship with Colgate, where he formerly

MARTIAL LAW SLATED MONDAY

Jewish Groups Expected To Ignore Ultimatum Issued By British Leaders

JERUSALEM, Feb. 6—Britain was reported reliably today to have completed special preparations to institute martial law in Palestine by Monday night.

Well-informed sources indicated that only a virtual "miracle" can prevent imposition of martial law.

Final arrangements were being rushed to completion in view of refusal by Jewish organizations to comply with the ultimatum of the Palestine government. The ultimatum demanded cooperation of the Jewish community in suppressing underground violence.

The attitude of both the Jewish agency for Palestine and the Vaad Leumi, the Jewish national council, toward the government's ultimatum seemed to indicate that Monday's deadline will pass unheeded. The Jewish organizations were given seven days last Monday in which to accept the British demand for cooperation.

Non-compliance is expected to bring about institution of martial law by special legislation Monday night.

It was learned that arrangements have been made to translate the regulations, with accompanying military rules, into Hebrew and Arabic languages over the weekend. The documents then will be ready for publication by a special government gazette.

The Vaad Leumi formally rejected the British ultimatum last night and Jewish quarters immediately expressed fear that martial law would follow.

SOLONS WANT BROWN

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 6—The Ohio house of representatives today urged the athletic board of Ohio State University to give former coach Paul Brown "every consideration" in selecting a new football coach. Alleged Wife-Murderer To Go To State Hospital For Examination

Harvey B. Julian, 26, former Circleville dairy worker who allegedly confessed the brutal slaying of his ex-wife, Pearl Eileen Julian, 20, was to be removed Thursday afternoon or Friday morning from the Pickaway county jail to the Columbus State hospital.

A formal court entry ordering Sheriff Charles Radcliff to transfer Julian to the Columbus institution to undergo mental observation for a period not to exceed 30 days was filed Thursday noon in the office of Clerk of Courts Arthur L. Wilder.

The entry bears the signatures of Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff, Attorney Emmitt L. Crist as counsel for Julian, and County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins. The document says the action was taken on the recommendation of Attorney Crist and after mental examination of Julian in jail by Dr. George W. Heffner, jail physician.

RUSSIA USING 95 U. S. SHIPS CONGRESS TOLD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—Congress was told today that Russia has refused to discuss the return of 95 ships chartered from the United States and is operating the vessels without paying rent for them.

Admiral W. W. Smith, chairman of the U. S. Maritime commission, testified before a house merchant marine subcommittee that the Soviet Union has declined to reply to all communications concerning redelivery of the chartered ships to the American flag.

Furthermore, Smith said that "to my knowledge" the Russians are paying the U. S. government "nothing at all" for the right to operate the leased vessels.

NEW HELICOPTER RECORD SOUGHT BY ARMY MAJOR

DAYTON, O., Feb. 6—A new altitude record for helicopters was to be attempted today at Wright field, Dayton.

Major Ernest Cassell, Indianapolis helicopter expert, said that he hoped to crack the German-held mark of 11,500 feet. The youthful major is aiming at the estimated absolute ceiling for an R5E Sikorsky helicopter of 20,000 feet.

High winds and cold forced a postponement of the attempted assault on the world's record yesterday. Cassell did, however, make a test takeoff.

VETERANS ARE REPORTED SELLING TERMINAL BONDS

AKRON, O., Feb. 6—A racket was unearthed today in which ex-servicemen allegedly are selling their terminal leave bonds for 75 per cent of maturity value.

A spokesman for the Akron veterans information center said that several war veterans had reported selling each $200 bond for $150 cash.

They said that photostatic copies of discharge papers were turned over to the buyers with the bonds.

New Sugar Stamp Good On April 1

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—The family sugar bowl took a new lease on life today, thanks to government action pushing validation of the next sugar ration stamp ahead one month.

The new stamp will become valid April 1. It will be worth ten pounds of sugar instead of the traditional five. Its number will be announced later.

As a result of this action, sugar obtained with stamp 53, which became valid Jan. 1, must be stretched over only three months instead of the scheduled four. Stamp 53 must be used by March 31 to avoid confusion which might result if stamps of different value are in use at the same time. After that date it will be void.

Although officials refused to commit themselves, it appeared likely that they are getting ready for a sizeable increase in the household sugar allocation.

Both the department of agriculture and the sugar ration branch of the office of temporary controls have indicated that some increase can be expected.

Just how much it will be depends on the amount of sugar this country imports. Unless imports fall substantially short of expectations, the ration for 1947 will be boosted to 35 pounds a person, compared to 25 pounds during 1946. A matching increase is also anticipated for industrial sugar users.

JUDGE RADCLIFF AT CONSERVANCY DISTRICT MEET

Judge William D. Radcliff, of the Pickaway county common pleas court, was in Columbus, Thursday afternoon, attending a meeting of the Scioto-Sandusky Conservancy district board composed of common pleas jurists in 17 counties.

Action was expected to be taken at the session relative to the proposed three-tenths-of-one-mill special tax levy on real estate to finance flood control and conservation.

Pickaway county would benefit substantially from the $293,000 which it has been calculated the proposed levy would raise. Judge Radcliff explained that if the levy is approved only $13,000 of the total of $293,000 would come from property owners in Pickaway county.

20-POINT TAX PROGRAM GIVEN TO LEGISLATURE

Commissioner Suggests Ohio Drop Admissions Tax, Give To Cities

OTHER PROPOSALS MADE

Dropping Of Special Levy Majority, Closer Checks Are Suggested

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 6—A twenty-point tax program that would net local governments 29½ millions a year was recommended today by State Tax Commissioner C. Emory Glander.

The program included a cut in the local government sales tax fund from 21 million dollars to 12 millions but this was more than offset by other increases totaling at least 17½ million dollars.

Glander submitted a comprehensive 93-page report to Governor Herbert and the legislature, representing his work since a special legislative session last year ordered him to survey all state tax sources.

The four principal recommendations were:

- 1.—That the state vacate the 2½ per cent admissions tax field, thus making three millions or more available to local governments for home levies.
- 2.—That the present state intangible tax on deposits and shares, now split with local governments, be given to municipalities entirely, increasing state grants by 12 millions a year.
- 3.—That the state bear the full cost of supporting common pleas and appellate courts, exclusive of the office of clerks of courts, saving the counties two millions a year, and
- 4.—That the present cigarette dealers' tax, now split with local governments, be given to them entirely increasing their state aid by a half-million a year.

CITY TAXES PROPOSED

The tax commissioner said the state "cannot afford to vacate the utility excise tax field" but nevertheless recommended that municipalities be authorized specifically to levy a tax on the gas, light and telephone bills of consumers.

He held that the supreme court decision of last year which invalidated the consumers' taxes of Youngstown, Columbus, Zanesville and Portsmouth, was based on the "inference" that the state's gross receipts tax pre-empted the entire utilities tax field.

Glander stated the legislature could remove the inference by specifically stating that nothing in the gross receipts utilities excise taxes levied by the state was to be construed as a prohibition against a consumers tax by municipalities.

URGES TAX CUTS

Glander recommended also an eventual tax reduction if revenues exceed expenditures by a reasonable amount after his program was carried into effect. His plan made no mention of any new tax.

In addition, Glander recommended a drive to compel county auditors to collect delinquent taxes under present laws which he said were adequate.

Taxes outstanding amount to more than 100 million dollars.

He asked that his personal property tax staff be increased by 25 or 30 inspectors promising this

3 DEMOCRATS, ONE REPUBLICAN RUN FOR MAYOR

Only Two GOP Candidates To Seek 12 Jobs Open In City Government

Eighteen candidates—16 Democrats and two Republicans—will seek nominations at the May 6 primary for 12 political posts in Circleville.

The deadline for the filing of nominating petitions arrived at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Two Democrats and one Republican seek the post of mayor and four Democrats are in the race for the three councilman-at-large posts. Two aspirants will clash for the Democratic nomination for councilman in the Third ward, and two Democrats will vie for their party nomination as councilman in the Fourth ward.

Joe Glitt, Republican candidate for mayor, and John W. Eshelman, Republican candidate for councilman in the First ward, are the only Republicans who filed petitions.

A full list of the petitions on file Thursday follows:

For Mayor
Thurman I. Miller (D); Joe E. Brink (D); and Joe Glitt (R).

For City Treasurer
Everett P. Stocklen (D) (incumbent).

For City Auditor
Miss Lillian M. Young (D) (incumbent).

For City Solicitor

20-POINT TAX PROGRAM GIVEN TO LEGISLATURE

Commissioner Suggests Ohio Drop Admissions Tax, Give To Cities

OTHER PROPOSALS MADE

Dropping Of Special Levy Majority, Closer Checks Are Suggested

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 6—A twenty-point tax program that would net local governments 29½ millions a year was recommended today by State Tax Commissioner C. Emory Glander.

The program included a cut in the local government sales tax fund from 21 million dollars to 12 millions but this was more than offset by other increases totaling at least 17½ million dollars.

Glander submitted a comprehensive 95-page report to Governor Herbert and the legislature, representing his work since a special legislative session last year ordered him to survey all state tax sources.

The four principal recommendations were:

1.—That the state vacate the 2½ per cent admissions tax field, thus making three millions or more available to local governments for home levies.

2.—That the present state intangible tax on deposits and shares, now split with local governments, be given to municipalities entirely, increasing state grants by 12 millions a year.

3.—That the state bear the full cost of supporting common pleas and appellate courts, exclusive of the office of clerks of courts, saving the counties two millions a year, and

4.—That the present cigarette dealers' tax, now split with local governments, be given to them entirely increasing their state aid by a half-million a year.

City Taxes Proposed

The tax commissioner said the state "cannot afford to vacate the utility excise tax field" but nevertheless recommended that municipalities be authorized specifically to levy a tax on the gas, light and telephone bills of consumers.

He held that the supreme court decision of last year which invalidated the consumers' taxes of Youngstown, Columbus, Zanesville and Portsmouth, was based on the "inference" that the state's gross receipts tax pre-empted the entire utilities tax field.

Glander stated the legislature could remove the inference by specifically stating that nothing in the gross receipts utilities excise taxes levied by the state was to be construed as a prohibition against a consumers tax by municipalities.

Urges Tax Cuts

Glander recommended also an eventual tax reduction if revenues exceed expenditures by a reasonable amount after his program was carried into effect. His plan made no mention of any new tax.

In addition, Glander recommended a drive to compel county auditors to collect delinquent taxes under present laws which he said were adequate.

Taxes outstanding amount to more than 100 million dollars. He asked that his personal property tax staff be increased by 25 or 30 inspectors promising this (Continued on Page Two)

JUDGE RADCLIFF AT CONSERVANCY DISTRICT MEET

Judge William D. Radcliff, of the Pickaway county common pleas court, was in Columbus, Thursday afternoon, attending a meeting of the Scioto-Sandusky Conservancy district board composed of common pleas jurists in 17 counties.

Action was expected to be taken at the session relative to the proposed three-tenths-of-one-mill special tax levy on real estate to finance flood control and conservation.

Pickaway county would benefit substantially from the $293,000 which it has been calculated the proposed levy would raise. Judge Radcliff explained that if the levy is approved only $13,000 of the total of $293,000 would come from property owners in Pickaway county.

GARDNER DIES ON EVE OF TRIP TO TAKE POST

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—O. Max Gardner of North Carolina, newly-appointed United States ambassador to Great Britain, died unexpectedly in a New York hotel today a few hours before he was to sail for London.

Successor to W. Averell Harriman as American ambassador to the court of St. James, Gardner had been booked to sail this afternoon on the United States liner America.

With his family, he had taken temporary residence at the Hotel St. Regis prior to his departure for London.

News of his sudden death came as a great shock to numerous friends and business associates in this country and to England as well.

British newspapers for weeks had been filled with portraits and character sketches of the new envoy, who made his last trip to Britain aboard a cattleboat.

Liquor Investigation To Go Back As Far As 1943

will conduct public hearings as soon as possible.

The committee also asked Co-fall for the current rules and regulations under which the state liquor board operates.

The committee was established to probe rumors and reports of irregularities within the department over a long-term span, and does not conflict with the Jenkins investigation of permits granted after former governor Lausche was defeated by Herbert in his bid for re-election.

Herbert, in announcing the extension of the Jenkins probe, told newsmen that "the investigation thus far justifies scrutinizing all classes of permits back at least another month."

Jenkins, meanwhile, said he had not as yet conferred directly with the entire senate group and did not immediately contemplate doing so, although he has promised them all possible cooperation.

The attorney general also made a point of telling newsmen there was "absolutely no truth" to published reports that the name of house majority leader Paul L. McCormick (R-Logan) appeared "in any fashion" in the files he has under investigation.

Herbert stated also that he hoped the attorney general's review of permits would be completed soon, stating that he did not expect to keep the 11 highway patrolmen acting as special investigators away from their duties "more than a month."

The patrolmen are on leave of absence from the patrol and currently are on the payroll of the liquor department as special agents.

ANOTHER COLD WAVE SLATED TO ARRIVE FRIDAY

in hazardous conditions along Lake Erie.

Cleveland's city transit system continued bogged down, with many instances of vehicular failure and streetcars and busses running far behind schedule.

The mercury this morning failed to equal yesterday's below zero readings, but the highest minimum of 12 degrees at Cincinnati and Chesapeake was far from being warm. The lowest reading was 3 above zero at East Liverpool and Youngstown.

Forecasters said that the mercury probably would climb to around 20 degrees today and hold that figure through tonight. Another downward surge was predicted for tomorrow night, with the mercury plummeting to near the low marks of the last several days.

For cold-weary Ohioans, the weatherman offered a little consolation by reporting the center of the current cold wave now over Miami, Fla.,—of all places.

The mercury dropped to the 32-degree freezing mark in that winter resort city this morning. It was even colder—23 degrees—in northern Florida and near the heart of the citrus belt. Prospects for a bumper orange crop dimmed with this damaging development.

High and low temperatures and precipitation amounts in inches, respectively, at various points for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a. m. today were:

Akron 8-5; Chesapeake 15-12; Cincinnati 19-12; Cleveland 10-6; Columbus 12-6; Dayton 13-7; East Liverpool 8-3; Findlay 10-6; Hayesville 9-4; Parkersburg, W. Va., 14-10; Perry 10-7; Toledo 13-7; Wilmington 12-8; Youngstown 8-3; .19; and Zanesville 10-5.

Hoover reported that "almost immediately Eisler became active in the American Communist movement."

Hoover declared that Eisler was identified to be the same person as one "Edward" who was the "representative of the Communist

Deaths and Funerals

MRS. FINLEY BARKER

Mrs. Sarah Emily Barker, 72, wife of Finley Barker, 404 North Scioto street, died Wednesday night in her home.

Mrs. Barker was born in Kentucky, the daughter of Amos De-bord and Catherine Barker De-bord. She was a member of the Scioto Valley Baptist church.

The body will be removed Friday morning from the Deffen-baugh funeral home to the Barker residence where it will remain until time for the funeral.

Besides her husband Mrs. Barker is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Kathleen Hughes, Wheelersburg; and Mrs. Olive Webb and Mrs. Susie Barker, London; Chester Barker, 418 North Scioto street; and Charles Barker, Circleville, RFD; and 22 grandchildren and 8 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a. m. Saturday at the Deffenbaugh funeral home. Arnold Castle, moderator of the church, will officiate. The cortege will leave at 2 p. m. Saturday for Jackson cemetery where burial will take place.

MRS. VICTOR A. PONTIUS

Mrs. Mary Effie Pontius, 66, wife of Victor A. Pontius, of near Hallsville, died at 7:10 a. m. Wednesday in Berger hospital, Circleville following a heart attack in her home Monday.

Mrs. Pontius was born July 18, 1880 in Ross county, the daughter of Albert Cryder and Ella Dumm Cryder. She was a member of the Colerain Evangelical Lutheran church.

The body will be removed Friday morning from the Deffen-baugh funeral home to the Pontius home on State Route 180, in Colerain township, Ross county, one mile east of Hallsville, on rural route Kingston.

Besides her husband Mrs. Pontius is survived by three sons, Damon Pontius, Laureville; Dwight Pontius, Amanda, RFD; and Orville, Kingston, RFD; and 5 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Saturday in the Hallsville Evangelical Lutheran church, with the Rev. Elliott and the Rev. Matthews officiating. Burial will be in the Hallsville cemetery.

Flames Kill Boys

CHARLESTON, W. VA., Feb. 6.—Two small boys were burned to death and nine families were driven into near-zero weather today when flames razed three homes and two apartment houses in suburban North Charleston.

The FBI chief said that Eisler was "recognized as a figure of primary importance and unlimited authority" in American Communist circles.

As "Edward," Hoover said, Eisler served as "the Communist representative and Soviet agent to other parts of the world." Hoover further related that Eisler was the "liaison" between the Soviet Communist internationale and the United States Communist organization.

Hoover's statement said that another alias for Eisler was "Hans Berger," a pen name under which Eisler was widely recognized as an "analyst" of Communist party policies in writings in Communist organs such as the Daily Worker.

20-POINT TAX PROGRAM GIVEN TO LEGISLATURE

Commissioner Suggests Ohio
Drop Admissions Tax,
Give To Cities

would result in the assessment of at least four or five million dollars more in personal property taxes for the counties each year.

He estimated that at least 25 per cent of unincorporated businesses failed to pay property taxes on their equipment.

Severance Tax Up
Glander also recommended a severance tax on all coal and other minerals in place of the present ad valorem and real estate taxes now levied against natural resources.

He emphasized that his tax proposal was not to be construed as a strip-mine control measure since it applied to all minerals, however mined.

If his proposals are enacted, Glander asserted the legislature could well afford to cut the sales tax local government fund back to 12 millions a year. In 1946 the total was increased to 16 million, and last year, by special legislative session, to 21 millions. He warned, however, that the amount of local government fund should not be determined until all other phases of his program are considered.

Glander said he favored returning some of the taxing powers to the local governments.

"Part of the responsibility for raising funds," he said, "must be left in the local community because that is the only way I know to place a check on public spending."

Permanent 'Fag' Tax

The present cigarette tax which yields 15 million dollars a year and is re-enacted each two years as a "temporary" measure Glander recommended be enacted as a permanent tax because "it now is definitely a part of our state tax structure."

He recommended also the continuation of the present liquid fuel tax which yields the state 15 million a year, but not necessarily on a permanent basis.

Inheritance taxes now split with local governments also were recommended for continuation, but Glander would change the method of allocation within the county.

City Aid Suggested
He proposed that the local government share go to the city, if the decedent lived in a municipality and to the county otherwise. Other recommendations:

Reduce the majority required to pass levies for current expenses outside the 10-mill limitation from 65 per cent to a majority.

Permit general obligation bonds to be issued by a majority vote instead of 65 per cent.

(Glander explained these two proposals by stating "if we believe in majority rule, we should not enact statutes which enable a 35 per cent minority to govern.")

Limit special assessment bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of special assessments to one-third of the assessed valuation of the benefitted property. Require continuing appraisals of real estate.

Permit county budget commissions to determine tax rates necessary to enable all subdivisions within a county to operate.

Permit school districts to receive additional state aid, if they have a levy of three mills for school purposes even if the total tax rate is below 10 mills.

ORDER ISSUED TO EVACUATE LITTLE AMERICA

IN ANTARCTICA, Feb. 6.—Rear Admiral Richard H. Cruzen issued orders to the fourth Byrd antarctic expedition to evacuate Little America today.

The operations commander of the naval expedition, announced ships of the central command and all but a small group of men will withdraw from the Bay of Wales at approximately 7 p. m.

Cruzen forecast that the ships and their escorting icebreaker would require from six to eight days to punch their way through nearly 500 miles of ice to reach Scott Island. At the latter destination, they will remain at sea anchorage for four weeks until the final evacuation of the men left behind.

The latter, comprising only 10 per cent of the expedition's personnel, will be brought out by icebreaker.

The departure, originally scheduled 24 hours earlier, was delayed in order to perfect communications installations ashore and to unload a final cargo onto the polar continent.

Cruzen said there was no danger that the shifting, treacherous ice in the bay would interfere with the final evacuation of personnel left behind. He indicated however, if bay ice in the harbor washed out, considerable equipment might have to be abandoned.

DRASTIC STEPS CAUSED BY COLD WAVE IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Urgent measures were prepared by the British government today in an effort to maintain an economy nearly wrecked by the severest Winter of the country.

The cabinet was called into emergency session as the devastating cold wave which is gripping Europe continued with relentless fury.

The government will invoke drastic measures in order to keep power stations and gas works operating in the face of dangerously low coal stocks.

The transportation of coal was completely stalled. Fifty seven coal vessels were unable to leave northeast coast ports and another 30, emptied their cargoes at London and other southern ports, were prevented from returning for new supplies.

Railroads of the nation were at a standstill because of ice and deep snows. Coastwise vessels were tied up in ports by heavy gales about the islands.

Numerous communities were snowbound in Yorkshire, Durham, Cumberland and Lincolnshire. Roads were impassable from Aberdeen to the south of England. In Lincolnshire, the drifts were the highest in human memory as snow swept to the top of telegraph poles.

IT MAY BE LEGAL SOON TO CHARGE DOG WAS STOLEN

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 6.—It soon may be legal to charge it is illegal to steal a dog in Ohio.

Rep. Kenneth Thornton (R-Cuyahoga) introduced a bill in the house to provide that a duly-licensed dog be considered personal property, "subject to lawful restraint" as other livestock and to be protected by the same laws.

The state supreme court last year had a case before it in which it was argued that a dog was not property and therefore could not be stolen.

Liquor Investigation To Go Back As Far As 1943

will conduct public hearings as soon as possible.

The committee also asked Co-fall for the current rules and regulations under which the state liquor board operates.

The committee was established to probe rumors and reports of irregularities within the department over a long-term span, and does not conflict with the Jenkins investigation of permits granted after former governor Lausche was defeated by Herbert in his bid for re-election.

Herbert, in announcing the extension of the Jenkins probe, told newsmen that "the investigation thus far justifies scrutinizing all classes of permits back at least another month."

Jenkins, meanwhile, said he had not as yet conferred directly with the entire senate group and did not immediately contemplate doing so, although he has promised them all possible cooperation.

The attorney general also made a point of telling newsmen there was "absolutely no truth" to published reports that the name of house majority leader Paul L. McCormick (R-Logan) appeared "in any fashion" in the files he has under investigation.

Herbert stated also that he hoped the attorney general's review of permits would be completed soon, stating that he did not expect to keep the 11 highway patrolmen acting as special investigators away from their duties "more than a month."

The patrolmen are on leave of absence from the patrol and currently are on the payroll of the liquor department as special agents.

ANOTHER COLD WAVE SLATED TO ARRIVE FRIDAY

in hazardous conditions along Lake Erie.

Cleveland's city transit system continued bogged down, with many instances of vehicular failure and streetcars and buses running far behind schedule.

The mercury this morning failed to equal yesterday's below zero readings, but the highest minimum of 12 degrees at Cincinnati and Chesapeake was far from being warm. The lowest reading was 3 above zero at East Liverpool and Youngstown.

Forecasters said that the mercury probably would climb to around 20 degrees today and hold that figure through tonight. Another downward surge was predicted for tomorrow night, with the mercury plummeting to near the low marks of the last several days.

For cold-weary Ohioans, the weatherman offered a little consolation by reporting the center of the current cold wave now over Miami, Fla.—of all places.

The mercury dropped to the 32-degree freezing mark in that Winter resort city this morning. It was even colder—23 degrees—in northern Florida and near the heart of the citrus belt. Prospects for a bumper orange crop dimmed with this damaging development.

High and low temperatures and precipitation amounts in inches, respectively, at various points for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a. m. today were:

Akron 8-5; Chesapeake 15-12; Cincinnati 19-12; Cleveland 10-6; Columbus 12-6; Dayton 13-7; East Liverpool 8-3; Findlay 10-6; Hayesville 9-4, 04; Parkersburg, W. Va., 14-10; Perry 10-7, 10; Toledo 13-7, 01; Wilmington 12-8; Youngstown 8-3, 19, and Zanesville 10-5.

Deaths and Funerals

MRS. FINLEY BARKER

Mrs. Sarah Emily Barker, 72, wife of Finley Barker, 404 North Scioto street, died Wednesday night in her home.

Mrs. Barker was born in Kentucky, the daughter of Amos De-bord and Catherine Barker De-bord. She was a member of the Scioto Valley Baptist church.

The body will be removed Friday morning from the Defen-baugh funeral home to the Barker residence where it will remain until time for the funeral.

Besides her husband Mrs. Barker is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Kathleen Hughes, Wheelersburg; and Mrs. Olive Webb and Mrs. Susie Le-master, both of Circleville, RFD; three sons, William Barker, London; Chester Barker, 413 North Scioto street; and Charles Barker, Circleville, RFD; and 22 grandchildren and 8 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a. m. Saturday at the Defenbaugh funeral home. Arnold Castle, moderator of the church, will officiate. The cortege will leave at 2 p. m. Saturday for Jackson cemetery where burial will take place.

MRS. VICTOR A. PONTIUS

Mrs. Mary Effie Pontious, 66, wife of Victor A. Pontious, of near Hallsville, died at 7:10 a. m. Wednesday in Berger hospital, Circleville following a heart attack in her home Monday.

Mrs. Pontious was born July 18, 1880 in Ross county, the daughter of Albert Cryder and Ella Dumm Cryder. She was a member of the Colerain Evangelical Lutheran church.

The body will be removed Friday morning from the Defen-baugh funeral home to the Pontious home on State Route 180, in Colerain township, Ross county, one mile east of Hallsville, on rural route Kingston.

Besides her husband Mrs. Pontious is survived by three sons, Damon Pontious, Laurelville; Dwight Pontious, Amanda, RFD; and Orville, Kingston, RFD; and 5 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Saturday in the Hallsville Evangelical Lutheran church, with the Rev. Elliott and the Rev. Matthews officiating. Burial will be in the Hallsville cemetery.

20-POINT TAX PROGRAM GIVEN TO LEGISLATURE

Commissioner Suggests Ohio
Drop Admissions Tax,
Give To Cities

would result in the assessment of at least four or five million dollars more in personal property taxes for the counties each year.

He estimated that at least 25 per cent of unincorporated businesses failed to pay property taxes on their equipment.

Severance Tax Up
Glander also recommended a severance tax on all coal and other minerals in place of the present ad valorem and real estate taxes now levied against natural resources.

He emphasized that his tax proposal was not to be construed as a strip-mine control measure since it applied to all minerals, however mined.

If his proposals are enacted, Glander asserted the legislature could well afford to cut the sales tax local government fund back to 12 millions a year. In 1946 the total was increased to 16 million, and last year, by special legislative session, to 21 millions. He warned, however, that the amount of local government fund should not be determined until all other phases of his program are considered.

Glander said he favored returning some of the taxing powers to the local governments.

"Part of the responsibility for raising funds," he said, "must be left in the local community because that is the only way I know to place a check on public spending."

Permanent 'Fag' Tax

The present cigarette tax which yields 15 million dollars a year and is re-enacted each two years as a "temporary" measure Glander recommended be enacted as a permanent tax because "it now is definitely a part of our state tax structure."

He recommended also the continuation of the present liquid fuel tax which yields the state 15 millions a year, but not necessarily on a permanent basis.

Inheritance taxes now split with local governments also were recommended for continuation, but Glander would change the method of allocation within the county.

City Aid Suggested

He proposed that the local government share go to the city, if the decedent lived in a municipality and to the county otherwise. Other recommendations:

Reduce the majority required to pass levies for current expenses outside the 10-mill limitation from 65 per cent to a majority.

Permit general obligation bonds to be issued by a majority vote instead of 65 per cent.

Glander explained these two proposals by stating "if we believe in majority rule, we should not enact statutes which enable a 35 per cent minority to govern."

Limit special assessment bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of special assessments to one-third of the assessed valuation of the benefited property.

Require continuing appraisals of real estate.

Permit county budget commissions to determine tax rates necessary to enable all subdivisions within a county to operate.

Permit school districts to receive additional state aid, if they have a levy of three mills for school purposes even if the total tax rate is below 10 mills.

ORDER ISSUED TO EVACUATE LITTLE AMERICA

IN ANTARCTICA, Feb. 6.—Rear Admiral Richard H. Cruzen issued orders to the fourth Byrd antarctic expedition to evacuate Little America today.

The operations commander of the naval expedition, announced ships of the central command and all but a small group of men will withdraw from the Bay of Wales at approximately 7 p. m.

Cruzen forecast that the ships and their escorting icebreaker would require from six to eight days to punch their way through nearly 500 miles of ice to reach Scott Island. At the latter destination, they will remain at sea anchorage for four weeks until the final evacuation of the men left behind.

The latter, comprising only 10 per cent of the expedition's personnel, will be brought out by icebreaker.

The departure, originally scheduled 24 hours earlier, was delayed in order to perfect communications installations ashore and to unload a final cargo onto the polar continent.

Cruzen said there was no danger that the shifting, treacherous ice in the bay would interfere with the final evacuation of personnel left behind. He indicated, however, if bay ice in the harbor washed out, considerable equipment might have to be abandoned.

HUSTON NAMED AGAIN TO HEAD COUNTY BOARD

Re-election of officers of the Pickaway county board of Education was announced Thursday.

County Superintendent of Schools George D. McDowell said the board met Wednesday night in his office in the courthouse in Circleville and formally approved the election which actually took place at a meeting held Jan. 18.

Howard Huston, Stoutsville, is president, and Homer S. Reber, Ashville, is vice president. Other members of the board are C. E. Dick, Mt. Sterling; Frank C. Sharp, Kingston; and J. F. Willis, Atlanta. McDowell continues as county superintendent.

DILTZ ADJUDGED GUILTY ON ONE LARCENY COUNT

Jury Returns Verdict After Three Hours 35 Minutes; Sentence Deferred

Adjudged guilty of grand larceny in the theft of personal property valued at $285.40 from the parked car of Vaden Couch last September, Orin Diltz, 24, Route 2, Circleville, was in the Pickaway County jail, Thursday, facing a one to seven year term in the Ohio penitentiary for that crime and he also faces trial on four other indictments charging burglary and grand larceny.

Following a three-day trial in common pleas court a jury of seven women and five men returned the verdict of guilty against Diltz at 3:45 p. m. Wednesday after having deliberated for three hours and 35 minutes.

Sentencing of Diltz will be deferred for a few days by Judge William D. Radcliff to give his counsel, Attorneys Lemuel B. Weldon and Frank Redfern an opportunity to file a motion for a new trial.

During the trial state's witnesses testified that two sets of golf clubs stolen from the Couch automobile were sold by Diltz at Vanceburg, Ky., shortly after the robbery, to a fellow carnival worker, Robert Lewis, Bellefontaine, for $50.

As the lone witness in his own defense Diltz denied all knowledge of the car looting. He admitted he sold the golf clubs to Lewis but claimed that he bought them for $20 from an unidentified young hitch-hiker he had picked up on U. S. Route 23 near Gold Cliff just south of Circleville.

The case went to the jury at 11:45 a. m. Wednesday. After deliberating about 45 minutes the jurors were escorted by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputies Carl Radcliff and Vern L. Pontious, to the Pickaway Arms for lunch. The jurors were escorted back to the courthouse at 1:55 p. m. to resume their deliberations.

Chester Wolf was foreman of the jury. The other jurors were: Meeker Hulse, Mrs. Annabelle Mowery, Francis McKinzie, D.

NO BRASS BAND SEES GANGSTER KING TO GRAVE

BURIAL SERVICES for Al (Scarface) Capone are a sharp contrast in their simplicity to the costly final tributes received by his henchmen and victims in the days when Al was "King" of the Chicago underworld. Vast floral displays and crowds of attending politicians so common at gangster funerals of the bootleg days are conspicuous by their absence as unidentified pallbearers carry Capone's casket into Chicago's Mount Olivet cemetery shelter.

H. Dunnick, Mrs. Cleo Hines, Miss Mildred Wertman, Mrs. Bernice Rawlinson, Mrs. Myrtle Hinton, Edgar N. May, Mrs. Arta James and Mrs. Blanche Puckett.

During his plea to the jury for acquittal of Diltz, Attorney Redfern declared that during World War II Diltz led an American Army air squadron on 17 bombing missions over Nazi Germany and that Diltz was the holder of several medals for bravery.

Several weeks ago the grand jury returned several indictments against Diltz and George Clifton, 25, Route 2, Circleville, charging burglary and grand larceny.

Judge Radcliff has fixed Feb. 24 as the date for the joint trial of the two accused men on an indictment charging them with staging the $1,300 burglary of the American Legion.

Lumber production figures for 1946 show an increase for the first time since 1942.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

PLAN TO SPLIT GERMANY INTO TWO STATES UP

Reports Say Division Will Be Made If Ministers Fail At Moscow

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Berlin dispatches asserted today that a plan has been formulated to split Germany into eastern and western states if the foreign ministers meeting at Moscow fails to agree on unification of the former Reich.

The plan supposedly has been prepared by Anglo-American authorities.

According to London morning newspapers which carried such reports, a western state—based on the area covered by the combined Anglo-American zones of Germany—would be established by American and British authorities.

This would mean that Germany, to all practical purposes, would be divided into two separate states—each having its own governing body, constitution, capital and diplomatic relations with the outside world.

The reports added that, as long as the occupation lasts, western Germany would be controlled by the Anglo-Americans and eastern Germany would function within the Soviet orbit.

It is supposedly the intention of the Anglo-American authorities, if this alternative becomes necessary, that a functioning democratic and centralized German government be established in western Germany as quickly as possible.

This German government would possess all organs of a government roughly paralleling the system established under the Weimar constitution.

A constitutional convention reportedly would be called to pave the way for the western German state.

These reports came on the heels of commons debate yesterday during which conservative members of parliament attacked the labor government's "appeasement" policy toward Russia.

The conservatives particularly criticized British policies in regard to Germany where authorities were said to be afraid of involving Russia.

SOLDIER UNDER QUESTIONING IN 'DAHLIA' CASE

Fort Dix Guard Arrested On Embezzling Charge Said To Know Miss Short

FORT DIX, N. J., Feb. 6—Questioning of Corp. Joseph Dumais, 29, a military policeman, in connection with the torture-murder of Elizabeth Short, the "Black Dahlia," continued today by Army authorities.

Dumais, arrested on a charge of embezzling money from another soldier, volunteered the information that he had had a "date" with Miss Short on Jan. 9, six days before her body was found in a Los Angeles vacant lot.

He carried a picture of the girl in his pocket book and authorities said there were human blood stains in a pocket of his trousers.

A native of Claremont, N. H., Dumais told Army officers he had been married three times.

He told a confused story of his "date" with the murdered girl. A psychiatrist who examined him recommended that he be hospitalized but army officers held him in custody at the Fort Dix guard-house.

Major Cornelius T. Morris, Fort Dix public relations officer said that authorities at Los Angeles had been notified and that the Army criminal investigation department was handling the questioning.

Dumais, according to Major Morris said he had taken a commercial plane to California when given a furlough at the conclusion of his overseas duty. Army officers could find no record of any plane seat being reserved in his name.

Dumais added that he had gone out with Miss Short on Jan. 9 but that he had "black-out" during the date and didn't remember anything until he found himself in Pennsylvania station in New York. He said he had no knowledge of the girl's murder until he read about it in the newspapers Jan. 18.

Dumais was arrested when a soldier accused him of failing to return all of the money which had been left with him for safe-keeping. It was said the soldier handed the money to Dumais when he left the post for a tour of nearby taverns. Dumais was one of the guards at the Fort Dix gates.

He told a confused story of his "date" with the murdered girl. A psychiatrist who examined him recommended that he be hospitalized but Army officers held him in custody at the Fort Dix guard-house.

Major Cornelius T. Morris, Fort Dix public relations officer said that authorities at Los Angeles had been notified and that the Army criminal investigation department was handling the questioning.

Dumais, according to Major Morris said he had taken a commercial plane to California when given a furlough at the conclusion of his overseas duty. Army officers could find no record of any plane seat being reserved in his name.

Dumais added that he had gone out with Miss Short on Jan. 9 but that he had "black-out" during the date and didn't remember anything until he found himself in Pennsylvania station in New York. He said he had no knowledge of the girl's murder until he read about it in the newspapers Jan. 18.

Dumais was arrested when a soldier accused him of failing to return all of the money which had been left with him for safe-keeping. It was said the soldier handed the money to Dumais when he left the post for a tour of nearby taverns. Dumais was one of the guards at the Fort Dix gates.

ASSIGNMENT: AMERICA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Sometimes when you are covering stories, both in war and in peace, one development alone is enough to frighten you.

Sometimes it requires two different developments to bring that fright—and often it comes only after you have considered each of them separately and noted nothing particularly fearful. . .

To begin with, it seems generally agreed on capitol hill and elsewhere around Washington that until some workable sort of international control is established, we must keep our atomic secret to ourselves.

It is a simple matter of survival, if nothing else.

So, there was no argument on that score the other day when the joint senate-house atomic committee was in session, carefully considering appointments to this country's atomic control commission.

However, an argument of sorts did develop concerning whether military men should sit in on all the commission's future sessions. During the course of that discussion, a side-issue was suggested by Senator Knowland, a California Republican.

The senator said that he thought congressional representatives also should be present at such sessions, and that the joint legislative committee should have some of its members sit in with the commission on atomic actions.

The suggestion brought solemn nods of approval from several committeemen. Iowa's Republican Senator Hickenlooper subsequently said sternly that the rights of both military men and lawmakers to know the inside activities of the atomic commission will be made very clear before the subject is settled.

Senators McMahon (D-Conn.) and Vandenberg (R-Mich.) got into some heated discussion about how much atomic information the average congressman should be given, but otherwise no one seemed particularly upset about the suggestion.

At the time, that is. . .

Then, another day the joint congressional committee took Bernard Baruch behind locked doors to hear some secret testimony about the atomic commission and project.

Presumably, Baruch's testimony was considered too secret and too dangerous to publicize at the moment. Otherwise, the little ceremony of locking out the public and the reporters would have seemed somewhat pointless, not to mention ridiculous.

Nevertheless, within a matter of hours (almost minutes, actually) after the committee room doors were unlocked and the congressmen back in circulation, reports were moving out over the air waves and teletypes to the effect that:

1.—Baruch told the committee that a Russian atomic spy ring may have been revived to steal the secret of the atom bomb;

2.—Baruch indicated that the Russians had been successful in obtaining considerable hitherto secret atomic information;

3.—The elder statesman further hinted that perhaps the Russians didn't yet know how really important was the information they possessed;

4.—Finally, Baruch strongly suggested a military man as general manager of the atomic program. . .

Those reports went out to the world, including Moscow. If correct, it might seem that perhaps such secrets should have been kept—as long as international atomic control remains but a gleam in the U. N. security council's eye.

And there seems little doubt but that they were correct, at least in the main. Even competing papers carried strikingly similar stories, and the reporters (who, incidentally were only doing their job, as long as the congressmen were going to talk at all of the secrets) said their sources were committee members. . .

So, somehow now there is something frightening about the idea of giving access to the innermost atomic commission secrets to any number of congressmen. . . men who are only human, after all. . . men to whom publicity is election bread-and-butter. . . and men who have neither the time nor scientific background to realize fully the deadly potency of some little atom of information they may possess. . .

Perhaps it is because most of the desirable parts of the world are preempted, that nations are taking an interest in the Polar regions. Russia would like air bases on the Arctic island of Spitzbergen, owned by Norway, and several countries are sending expeditions to the Antarctic.

CENSURING PARTNER BAD
CENSURING your partner for what he did on a hand is bad enough at any time. It is particularly damaging if your criticism is unsound and if the alternative action you recommend would have proved no more effective than what he actually did. That is about the worst thing that can be done to break up the morale of a partnership. Making a carefully considered suggestion, perhaps in the form of a mere question, may help a partner to do a better job on some later hand. But even that may harm more than it helps. The best time to give a lesson to him is after the entire game is over.

West led the spade 3, so the 10 got the first trick. Later South of course took two more spade tricks with the A and K. In addition to three hearts because the finesse worked, two diamonds and three clubs. That gave him a total of eleven, which tied the pair with a bunch of others in the pair duplicate where this deal came up.

East censured West afterward for developing a trick for the declarer which he could not possibly have earned for himself except for West's lead. He tried to say that, if West had led the Q instead of his fourth-best 3, South would have taken only two tricks in spades.

Let's examine that from two standpoints. First of all, an honor is usually a bad lead against a No Trump game, even with two touchers like the Q and J, unless the leader also has a third card at least as high as the Q, which he did not have. Second, the lead of the Q would not have cut down South's tricks. The A could have won it, the 10 could have been led next for the K to kill West's J and drop the 9 at the same time, and the 7 would have given South a third trick in the suit.

So on all counts East was wrong. A heart lead would have prevented that eleventh trick for South. But who would select that lead?

DIET AND HEALTH

A Difficult Problem For Both Youngster and Parent

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ENURESIS or bed-wetting is usually more distressing to parents than any other of childhood's faults or failures. If they could only realize that voluntary control of the bladder during sleep normally develops at a later age than control during waking hours, they would save themselves worry and spare the child all the bad effects which result when parental shame and resentment are visited on his defenseless head.

According to Dr. Clifford Sweet of Oakland, California, parents should be told, first of all, that a child should not be accused of bed-wetting until he is well beyond the age at which he can have control of the bladder when asleep. In some children this may not be until the youngster is three or four years of age.

Several Causes
If enuresis or bed-wetting does continue beyond this period, it may be due to several things. The child may not yet have grown up with reference to control of his bladder, even though he may be particularly advanced in other ways. On the other hand, impatience, blame and punishment on the part of his parents may have held back his progress, and even have kept him from trying to cooperate in learning bladder control.

Bed-wetting may continue because subconsciously the child wishes to remain in the protected state of infancy, and another cause may be his subconscious resentment against the way his parents dominate him. Thus, wetting the bed is his way of getting even with them for too much criticism.

The Treatment

Thus, according to Dr. Sweet, in getting rid of enuresis, the treatment must be reeducation of the child and his parents rather than the use of any drugs, changes in the diet or similar measures. Only very rarely, in Dr. Sweet's opinion, is the habit due to any actual disease either of the bladder or other body structures. In some instances, however, such things as bladder or kidney inflammation may be responsible and occasionally diabetes may be at the root of the trouble.

In the great majority of cases the problem is not a physical but a psychological one in which both parents and child are involved. It usually clears up readily when parents learn the proper methods of handling the offending youngster. Of course they must show confidence in him, avoiding criticism, blame and punishment.

The chief thing is to remember that bladder control is something which the child must learn just as he learns to walk and talk and that he will learn it in time if parents show patience and understanding. The child must not be allowed to be upset because he occasionally wets the bed.

One of the directors of a British company tried it. He had the medics excavate his noodle and short-circuit a fifth of his brains.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

CLIFF WALKED down to the plane, but Pablo was nowhere around, and after a few moments he started back to the cook shack to finish his breakfast. As he picked his way along the muddy path, he met Madison, returning, wet and mud-covered, from the jungle.

"Any sign of Vicente?" Cliff asked.
"How could there be? The water's six inches deep in all the trails. Let's get something to eat." Disgustedly Madison kicked the black muck from his boots. "That blasted bungling Sloan! The bigger the man, the smaller the brain." He glanced up at Cliff and suddenly smiled. "Of course, you might not agree with that."

Inside the cook shack Florian dumped two spoonfuls of sugar into his coffee, hesitated, and added a third. "Well, worrying about Vicente won't bring him back," he said, "so let's forget it. I want to talk to you about this rubber business. Have you another of those good American cigarettes?"

"Take the pack."
"Oh, thanks," Madison began sipping his coffee. "Before that fool Sloan let Vicente escape, Janet told me all about what you want to do. I've been thinking it over, and I might get Claribel to agree to your rubber option—on one condition. The condition being that you tell Claribel it's absolutely necessary for Janet to stay here and work for you."

Cliff's face had become emotionless as a mask. "What does she know about rubber?" he asked.
"Janet knows anything she wants to know. But that's not important. The important thing is that it's the only way I'll help you, and you're intelligent enough to see I hold the whip hand."

Cliff lit a cigarette and carefully blew out the match. Much as he hated this ultimatum forced down his throat, he was realistic enough to know when all the cards were against him, and this time he was playing against Janet. In spite of his resentment at the use she was making of him, he felt an impulse to laugh. For a rabbit, she certainly managed to get her own way. And she hadn't lost any time in coaching Madison how to put the screws on. Still, it was a game two might play.

Cliff examined his cigarette. "You win," he said, and his drawl had become almost gentle. Madison's mobile face showed his delight. "That's fine! I'll go tell her."

"Just a minute. If I hire Miss Norman she's got to work. I don't need ornaments in my organization—not even red-headed ones."

"That's up to Janet and you. All I care about is to have her stay. Madison thrust out his hand. "Is it a deal?"

"It is if you can persuade your aunt to let me get started."
"I'll persuade her, if it's the last thing I do. That damned old tyrant can't always—" Madison stopped, but not before Cliff saw those strange slate-colored eyes strike fire.

At the door Madison turned. "I'm flying down to the coast with Pablo this morning. I'll be back tomorrow, and meanwhile you and Janet had better stay here. Above all, don't show up in New Dixie until I see you again. Then we'll have a council of war with—what is it you call my revered aunt?"

Cliff walked slowly back over the wet trail to his shack. He was both elated and angry. Elated at the prospect of his eleventh hour reprieve, angry at the condition that Madison—really Janet, for that matter—was forcing him to accept. But beyond all that, he was puzzled by Madison's sudden willingness to let him undertake the rubber work. It wasn't just because Madison wanted to have Janet stay; there was something more to it, something that had taken form in Madison's mind while they were talking earlier in the morning. Cliff gave it up. There were too many things he had no answer for. All he could be sure of was a future filled with dynamite, and two allies he had no shadow of trust in.

A discreet knock sounded on the door, and Wade entered.
"Just heard you and Miss Janet are stayin' on in spite of Claribel." The hunter looked genuinely pleased. "Claribel be an old hollion, and there's a good many of us here think a lot of Janet Norman."

"Cliff did not answer. As far as he was concerned, both women could be a thousand miles away. Wade went on. "Just wanted to tell you to make yourself at home until Madison gets back. Lilli and I are leavin' for the upper country. There's a pair of jaguars near the rubber plantations I oughta get a good price for."

Cliff looked eagerly up. "Are you going to the plantations?"
"Right to the edge of 'em."
"Will you take me?"
Wade scratched his head. "We mayn't get back for five or six days, and Madison said you was to see him tomorrow when he flies up from the coast."

"I think I can fix that if you'll take me."
Wade still looked doubtful. "What about Miss Janet?"
"Let her stay here." There was a spontaneous heartiness in Cliff's voice that made the hunter look up at him.

"I wouldn't like that," he said slowly. "Not leave her all by herself."
"She's not a child, is she?"
"Out came the blue handkerchief in evidence that Wade was struggling with a problem. "You see," he began uncertainly, "I wouldn't want anything to happen."

Remembering Janet's heel mark down by Vicente's cage, and her adroitness in forcing him to give her a job, Cliff asked bitterly. "What could happen? She might spunk heck out of Plato, or tie your bushmasters in knots, but nothing could happen to her—that girl can take care of herself."
Looking more and more unhappy, Wade stood fumbling with his handkerchief, while Cliff added more quietly. "Well, if you're afraid to leave her, why not take her with us?"
"She don't know much about this jungle—she ain't like Lilli."
Cliff blew up again. "What's the matter with her? You act as if she needs a nurse."

Wade held his handkerchief and stuffed it in his back pocket. "I guess," he said with no visible enthusiasm.
Relieved to have Janet's problem momentarily settled, and stirred by the prospect of action, Cliff hurried down to the wharf—things were beginning to march. "I found Pablo busy inside the cabin of his plane, and at the news that Cliff and Janet were not going back with him, the little pilot raised eloquent shoulders.
"Mi madre," he sighed, "never do I have passengers who so cannot mak' up the mind."

"Our minds are being made up for us, Pablo, old son. But look here," Cliff pulled a map from his jacket. "I want to leave for the rubber plantations with Wade this morning if you can pick me up tomorrow after you bring Madison back. Do you know any place you could land around there?"

Pablo bent over the map. "Si, I know three places. Here"—he pointed to a straight stretch of river—"is the best. I have landed twice before. But why do you go?"

"I want to see what shape those plantations are in. Will you pick me up—and don't charge me any fancy rates, you old brigand?"
"I charge you plenty," Pablo laughed. "Bueno. Tomorrow I fly over at noon. Lay out something white for the signal, and I come down."

"It's a date, I'll—"
Glancing out through the open porthole, Cliff saw Janet and Madison coming down the catwalk. Even with his high-heeled boots, Madison's shoulders were an inch or two below the girls', and he was taking long strides to keep step with her. Just outside the porthole they stopped, and Cliff heard Madison say, "Don't worry. We'll take care of him. Let's talk about it."

Laughing, he drew the girl toward him, and for a second they stood motionless, while Cliff thought of Claribel's words—"Janet is a cold-blooded, calculating minx, the kind you men go off the deep and for."

But now, with a little shake of the head Janet moved back, and Madison flushed.
"Have I changed as much as that?" he asked.
"Perhaps."

"How?"
"You've hardened."
"The years haven't most of us," his voice was still resentful. "If this Bogard person—"

"Oh, must we go through that again?" she burst out. "I've told you everything about him."
"Not everything, my pet. I doubt if you ever did tell me everything. But I know the Bogard type—good natured, a little dumb—"

She shook her head. "He's anything but good natured, and he's certainly not dumb."
"He practically said he doesn't want you around, and that's dumb and blind both."

Behind him Cliff heard Pablo's delighted chuckle, and shutting the porthole, he pulled the pilot close. "That gentleman," he whispered, "better not know about my trip to the plantations."

With one finger the pilot touched his stubby mustache. "I am shut up like a sphinx."

and ill-considered, impelling to errors, wrong judgment, extravagance and waste, unless a rigid curb be exerted to prevent disaster and regrets. With calm, sagacious and carefully weighed plans and programs, well-considered changes, and a revision of costs, estimates and resources, it is possible to reap surprising returns and most lucrative culminations. And this with the happiest reactions on the social, domestic and affectional life. Such may incite pleasant celebrations, impromptu festivities, "parties" or engagements.

Those whose birthday it is may have a very happy and prosperous year, with many benefits, pleasures and lucrative activities if they will be governed by sound and studied endeavors and well-organized procedures, refraining from hasty moves, half-baked plans and wasteful use of funds as well as resources and energies. Judgment may be faulty and the impulses and emotions likely to call for rigid regulation and restraint. Much happiness in home and love life is probable.

AN ATOMIC WORLD

IT seems to be accepted by a great many people that the biggest thing our civilization has accomplished is our invention of the atomic bomb with its corollary, the constructive use of atomic energy. It is unquestionably a great scientific achievement; possibly the most notable accomplishment of human history from the viewpoint of material science. We seem to be gaining the mastery, in various ways, of long-sought secrets, including even the very stuff from which the world is made.

But whether this sort of achievement is necessarily a good thing is another question. From both the Greek and the Hebrew scriptures a student seems to get a rather strong impression that it is not wise to pry too deeply into the secrets of how the world is made. Whether this is superstition, or merely good sense, it is not necessary at present to discuss. But there have been some radio broadcasts lately, from scientific men at the top of their profession, who discuss atomic fission and other scientific monstrosities in a way that rather chills the blood of an ordinary citizen.

Just suppose, now, that we should wake up some Sunday morning to find a group of our atomic scientists calmly taking the world apart. Some of us wouldn't like it.

ST. LOUIS SESQUI FAIR

LIFE is getting back to normal in these United States. Plans are under way for another world's fair. This time it is to be in St. Louis in 1953, the 150th anniversary of the Louisiana Purchase. The 100th anniversary was celebrated in St. Louis by one of the best remembered world's fairs back in 1904, postponed from 1903 because the necessary arrangements were too complicated for the date of opening originally planned. If the 1953 fair does as well for its day as did the one in 1904, St. Louis should feel well satisfied. It has the marks set by the Chicago and New York expositions of the '30's to meet.

St. Louis made one special and rather unusual preparation for the 1904 celebration. It cleaned out its city government and chose an outstanding citizen, Rolla Wells, for mayor. While today's St. Louis city government has not achieved particular notoriety, it could doubtless be improved. Most city governments could. There might well be a committee to see that municipally speaking, St. Louis presents its best face to the world in 1953.

ECONOMICS IN PRACTICE

MOST people think of economics as an abstruse subject studied in college, a subject involving columns of statistics and principles that are hard to understand. On the contrary, every schoolchild keeping his expenditures within his allowance, every housewife with her carefully thought-out budget, and every pater-familias with his problem of shoes for a growing family and repairs on the jalopy—in short, everybody—uses the principles of economics every day.

When citizens think of the national debt, of all the various taxes that keep the government going, and of trade with foreign countries, the application of the same common sense he uses in solving his own day-to-day problems will help to clarify these sometimes confusing issues.

EXPLOITING NAMES

THE United Nations name may not be exploited commercially if a bill just introduced goes through the New York legislature. United Nations restaurants, drugstores, liquor stores and bingo parlors will be out, and there will be no chance for people to be deceived.

Some such rule ought to be applied to the free use of the name United States. Early in the depression in New York City the Bank of the United States failed under scandalous circumstances, and many depositors lost everything. The bank had no connection with the United States, but the name had appealed to many of the poorer and less educated because to them the words meant safety. Their trust should not have been betrayed.

Those reports went out to the world, including Moscow. If correct, it might seem that perhaps such secrets should have been kept—as long as international atomic control remains but a gleam in the U. N. security council's eye.

And there seems little doubt but that they were correct, at least in the main. Even competing papers carried strikingly similar stories, and the reporters (who, incidentally were only doing their job, as long as the congressmen were going to talk at all of the secrets) said their sources were committee members. . .

So, somehow now there is something frightening about the idea of giving access to the innermost atomic commission secrets to any number of congressmen. . . men who are only human, after all. . . men to whom publicity is election bread-and-butter. . . and men who have neither the time nor scientific background to realize fully the deadly potency of some little atom of information they may possess. . .

Perhaps it is because most of the desirable parts of the world are preempted, that nations are taking an interest in the Polar regions. Russia would like air bases on the Arctic island of Spitzbergen, owned by Norway, and several countries are sending expeditions to the Antarctic.

"The Authority on Authorities"

CENSURING PARTNER BAD

CENSURING your partner for what he did on a hand is bad enough at any time. It is particularly damaging if your criticism is unsound and if the alternative action you recommend would have proved no more effective than what he actually did. That is about the worst thing that can be done to break up the morale of a partnership. Making a carefully considered suggestion, perhaps in the form of a mere question, may help a partner to do a better job on some later hand. But even that may harm more than it helps. The best time to give a lesson to him is after the entire game is over.

East censured West afterward for developing a trick for the declarer which he could not possibly have earned for himself except for West's lead. He tried to say that, if West had led the Q instead of his fourth-best 3, South would have taken only two tricks in spades.

Let's examine that from two standpoints. First of all, an honor is usually a bad lead against a No Trump game, even with two touchers like the Q and J, unless the leader also has a third card at least as high as the 9, which he did not have. Second, the lead of the Q would not have cut down South's tricks. The A could have won it, the 10 could have been led next for the K to kill West's J and drop the 9 at the same time, and the 7 would have given South a third trick in the suit.

So on all counts East was wrong. A heart lead would have prevented that eleventh trick for South. But who would select that lead?

NO PLACE for WOMEN

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

CLIFF WALKED down to the plane, but Pablo was nowhere around, and after a few moments he started back to the cook shack to finish his breakfast. As he picked his way along the muddy path, he met Madison, returning, wet and mud-covered, from the jungle.

"Any sign of Vicente?" Cliff asked.

"How could there be? The water's six inches deep in all the trails. Let's get something to eat." Disgustedly Madison kicked the black muck from his boots. "That blasted bungling Sloan! The bigger the man, the smaller the brain." He glanced up at Cliff and suddenly smiled. "Of course, you might not agree with that."

Inside the cook shack Florian dumped two spoonfuls of sugar into his coffee, and added a third. "Well, worrying about Vicente won't bring him back," he said, "so let's forget it. I want to talk to you about this rubber business. Have you another of those good American cigarettes?"

"Take the pack."

"Oh, thanks," Madison began sipping his coffee. "Before that fool Sloan let Vicente escape, Janet told me all about what you want to do. I've been thinking it over, and I might get Claribel to agree to your rubber option—one on condition, the condition being that you tell Claribel it's absolutely necessary for Janet to stay here and work for you."

Cliff's face had become emotionless as a mask. "What does she know about rubber?" he asked.

"Janet knows anything she wants to know. But that's not important. The important thing is that it's the only way I'll help you, and you're intelligent enough to see I hold the whip hand."

Cliff lit a cigarette and carefully blew out the match. Much as he hated this, the match forced down his throat, he was realistic enough to know when all the cards were against him, and this time he was playing against a winning combination—Madison and Janet.

In spite of his resentment at the use she was making of him, he felt an impulse to laugh. For a rabbit, she certainly managed to get her own way. And she hadn't lost any time in coaching Madison how to put the screws on. Still, it was a game two might play.

Cliff examined his cigarette. "You win," he said, and his drawl had become almost gentle.

Madison's mobile face showed his delight. "That's fine! I'll go tell her."

"Just a minute. If I hire Miss Norman she's got to work. I don't need ornaments in my organization—not even red-headed ones."

"That's up to Janet and you. All I care about is to have her stay," Madison thrust out his hand. "Is it a deal?"

"It is if you can persuade your aunt to let me get started."

"I'll persuade her, if it's the last thing I do. That darned old tyrant can't always—"

Madison stopped, but not before Cliff saw those strange slate-colored eyes strike fire.

At the door Madison turned. "I'm flying down to the coast with Pablo this morning. I'll be back tomorrow, and meanwhile you and Janet had better stay here. Above all, don't show up in New Dixie until I see you again. Then we'll have a council of war with—well, is it you call my revered aunt?"

With the domineering pachyderm. Cliff walked slowly back over the wet trail to his shack. He was both elated and angry. Elated at the prospect of his eleventh hour reprieve, angry at the condition that Madison—really Janet, for that matter—was forcing him to accept. But beyond all that, he was puzzled by Madison's sudden willingness to let him undertake the rubber work. It wasn't just because Madison wanted to have Janet stay; there was something more to it, something that had taken form in Madison's mind while they were talking earlier in the morning. Cliff gave it up. There were too many things he had no answer for. All he could be sure of was a future filled with dynamite, and two allies he had no shadow of trust in.

A discreet knock sounded on the door, and Wade entered.

"Just heard you and Miss Janet are staying on in spite of Claribel," the hunter looked genuinely pleased. "Claribel can be an old heiloon, and there's a good many of us here think a lot of Janet Norman."

Cliff did not answer. As far as he was concerned, both women could be a thousand miles away.

Wade went on. "Just wanted to tell you to make yourself at home until Madison gets back. Lilli and I are leavin' for the upper country. There's a pair of jaguars near the rubber plantations I oughta get a good price for."

Cliff looked eagerly up. "Are you going to the plantations?"

"Right to the edge of 'em."

"Will you take me?"

Wade scratched his head. "We mayn't get back for five or six days, and Madison said you was to see him tomorrow when he flies up from the coast."

"I think I can fix that if you'll take me."

Wade still looked doubtful. "What about Miss Janet?"

"Let her stay here." There was a spontaneous heartiness in Cliff's voice that made the hunter look up at him.

"I wouldn't like that," he said slowly. "Not leave her all by herself."

"She's not a child, is she?"

Out came the blue handkerchief in evidence that Wade was struggling with a problem. "You see," he began uncertainly, "I wouldn't want anything to happen."

Remembering Janet's heel mark down by Vicente's cage, and her adroitness in forcing him to give her a job, Cliff asked bitterly, "What could happen? She might spunk back out of Plato, or tie your bushmasters in knots, but nothing could happen to her—that girl can take care of herself."

Looking more and more unhappy, Wade stood fumbling with his handkerchief, while Cliff added more quietly, "Well, if you're afraid to leave her, why not take her with us?"

"She don't know much about this jungle—she ain't like Lilli."

Cliff blew up again. "What's the matter with her? You act as if she needs a nurse."

Wade gave his glowering forehead a polish. "It's this way, Mr. Bogard. Miss Janet's always been what you'd call sheltered. Her father watched over her—she never went out into the jungle except with him, and then only close in to New Dixie. Maybe he was too careful of her. It ain't that she lacks courage, but she ain't got experience of jungle ways, and courage without experience gets you into trouble." The hunter looked up. "I think you've been kinda hard on her. Dr. Norman just about filled her life, and when he got drowned in the flood she was left all by herself. It ain't been easy. Now

Behind him, Cliff heard Pablo's delighted chuckle and shutting the porthole, he pulled the pilot close. "That gentleman," he whispered, "better not know about my trip to the plantations."

With one finger the pilot touched his stubby mustache. "I am shut up like a sphinx."

Hints on Etiquette

Don't plan to play practical jokes on the bride and groom that would prove embarrassing to them.

them, or painful. A well-mannered person never goes too far in fun, but has a consideration for his victim.

If you have a birthday today, be self-confident and trusting; it will make you enjoy your home and friends more. You have good judgment and a fine sense of character, but should not let it predominate your friendships by constantly analyzing them. For the next twelve months your life will proceed on an even keel. You will experience unexpected gains and some financial loss or heavy expense. Eschew law and propriety. This day is good for matters that require skill, secrecy or finesse. Gain or opportunity will come to you from a strange source. Progress can be made on this date. Born today a child will develop scientific ability and be keen on chemistry and out of the ordinary subjects, wherein success will be achieved. He may suffer loss through law or excessive expenditure, it is depicted.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. The Cadet's prayer (West Point).

2. Because the first letters of the phrase, "Jesus Christ, Son of God, Saviour," formed the Greek word for fish.

3. Forty years.

Members of the Friendship club gathered in the home of Mrs. Walter F. Heine, East Mound street, Wednesday evening, for their monthly session.

Mrs. Fred Duncan conducted the business meeting and received reports from various committees. Mrs. Lewis Sharp was in charge of several contests, which were won by Mrs. Ella Hornbeck and Mrs. R. F. Lilly. Prizes were presented the winners.

Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh and Mrs. Lilly were assisting hostesses and joined with Mrs. Heine in serving refreshments during the social hours.

Mrs. Duncan will entertain the club for the next meeting, in March.

HAYNES-MCCOLLISTER

The Rev. E. L. Allen officiated in the Methodist parsonage, Greenup, Kentucky, January 18 for the single ring ceremony, when Miss Martha Haynes, became the bride of Kenneth McCollister. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Haynes, Frankfort, and Mr. McCollister is the son of H. C. McCollister, Clarksville. The new Mrs. McCollister attended Clarksville high school and was formerly employed in Chillicothe, and the bridegroom attended Frankfort high school. They will make their home near Frankfort where Mr. McCollister is engaged in farming.

OBJECTIONS TO CONSERVATION MERGER BLOCKED

Amendment Gives Licenses To Wildlife; Mrs. Davis Backs Ohio Bill

Objection of many sportsmen in Pickaway county and elsewhere in Ohio had been overcome Thursday with adoption by the senate conservation committee of an amendment which makes specific the ear-marking of all hunting and fishing license fees for wildlife use.

The amendment was adopted unanimously, Wednesday, after Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert and several other witnesses endorsed the bill as "a step in the right direction", and "as important a piece of legislation as any to come before this assembly."

Among those who appeared Wednesday at the second hearing before the committee for proponents of the bill was Mrs. Ray W. Davis, Montclair avenue, Circleville, who declared that her 70,000 members of the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs endorsed the bill. Others at the hearing included Willis O. Hall, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars; J. S. Wagner, director of Akron parks; and Attorney Victor Jacobs of Dayton who headed the post-war program subcommittee which drafted the bill.

The committee then scheduled a meeting for next Wednesday night at which opponents of the bill will be heard.

Herbert said that if the various conservation agencies now in different state departments were consolidated, they "would be working harmoniously together instead of scattered over the state, snapping at each other."

Herbert also suggested that the legislature appropriate a half-million dollars for the construction of a conservation building to house the new department, including a display room for exhibits of Ohio's natural resources.

"Hunting and fishing benefits would be enormously increased," the lieutenant governor stated. "If Indiana had the scenic resources of our southeastern sector of the state, they would have thousands upon thousands of tourists each year. Ohio has the widest variety of mineral resources of any state, possibly excepting Pennsylvania."

Lem's Dogs vs Thad's Chickens

Running a newspaper, you get to know a lot about human nature. Thad Phipps was in the other day, all burned up. Wanted me to run an item on how Lem Martin's dog had raided his chickens again, and ought to be put away by law.

I told him: "Lem was in on Saturday. Said you shouldn't be allowed to keep those chickens so close to his house—and in a residential zone, at that."

Thad shuts up right pronto then. And that very evening I see him making his peace with Lem at Andy Botkin's Garden Tavern—over a friendly glass of beer.

From where I sit, anyone can find something in his neighbor to complain about. (Some folks may even disagree with Thad's right to enjoy that glass of beer with Lem!) But where would we be if everybody tried to have a law passed against everything they disagreed with? We wouldn't have many neighbors left!

TWO TEAMS IN TIE FOR FOURTH IN CAGE LOOP

Walnut, Saltcreek Have Same Record As County Play Nears End

Walnut and Saltcreek were tied for fourth place in the Pickaway county basketball league Thursday and for the fourth seeded spot in the tournament.

Walnut defeated Washington 51-30 Wednesday night while Saltcreek was beating Pickaway 42-29. In another league game Williamsport ended its regular season with a 72-16 win over Jackson. New Holland defeated an alumni team by a 49-25 score.

Bob Jones scored 17 points as Saltcreek won at Tarleton. Bob Wilson had eight for Pickaway. Saltcreek led all the way, although the score was close at times. Saltcreek went ahead 16-11 the first quarter, led 20-18 at the half and 34-23 at the three-quarter mark.

Saltcreek reserves won 20-12. The victory gives the varsity team a 7-4 league record. Second team for Walnut started against Washington at Roll and Bowl and the first quarter score was 10-10. At the half the score was 27-19. The big boys ran it to 41-21 in third quarter before the second team went back in. Bob Pontius led the scoring with 16 points. Paul Kraft had 11 for Washington.

Walnut reserves won 19-12. Walnut varsity also now has a seven and four record and probably will "flip" with Saltcreek for the fourth seeded spot in the tournament.

Link Schleich scored 21 points and Jimmy Picklesimer 20 as Williamsport walked over Jackson. J. Eitel had five for Jackson. Williamsport led 12-7 the first quarter, 27-11 at the half and 53-14 at the end of three quarters.

An alumni team composed of some of the best players of former New Holland teams could not keep up with the Bulldogs. Ebert, Lanman, Helfrich, Kirk and company took a 10-4 lead, then the New Holland team took over. Jim McCown got his usual 19 points. Lanman had nine for the alumni team.

In a preliminary Atlanta All Stars defeated New Holland All Stars 57-20. Bentley had 18 and Hobbie 12 for the winners. Cottrell had eight for New Holland. Only one game remains on the Friday night league schedule as the end of the hectic 1946-47 basketball season arrives. With their seasons ended most of the county's coaches and many players are expected to watch this game.

In the feature contest, Ashville high school gym will be the scene of the long-awaited New Holland-Ashville battle. Some of the edge was taken off the game when Walnut defeated Ashville last week to make New Holland the only unbeaten team in the county.

Ashville has lost only one game and followers of the team will forget all about the Walnut upset if their favorites can defeat the proud New Holland team. Ashville showed plenty of scoring power Tuesday night while defeating Circleville 53-28. New Holland rules as a slight favorite but Ashville fans are picking their team to win and gain a tie for the county league title.

Drawings for the county tournament will be held Thursday night at a meeting of school superintendents and coaches. The tournament starts Monday night at Roll and Bowl.

THIRD GAME MAY BE FEATURE IN CITY CAGE LOOP

Blue Ribbon Dairy and Eshelman Feeds game, set for 8:30, is expected to be the feature attraction at tonight's City Industrial basketball league program in Roll and Bowl.

Blue Ribbon won the first round title by not losing a game but has been beaten in the second round. Eshelman's is unbeaten in the second round and the Feedmen are planning to hand Blue Ribbon another defeat.

Robtown Stock Farm is favored in the first game at 6:30. Tarleton AC will provide the opposition. At 7:30 p. m. Ashville KP is expected to defeat Five Points.

The 9:30 game, between Eagles and Pickaway Dairy, should provide plenty of fireworks.

Stone Creek 5 Loses On Hardwood and On Paper

BY JOHN BARRINGTON

INS Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 6 — Scrambled scribbles from the sports samovar... Consider for a moment fate's most forgotten step-child... Our nominee is Stone Creek of Tuscarawas county. That unfortunate class "B" basketball team not only loses every time it ventures onto the hardwood... it even drops games on paper...

Stone Creek was shorn of its only 1946-47 "victory" when High School Commissioner H. W. Emswiler ruled in favor of Port Washington in the matter of a disputed score... Stone Creek claimed a one-point win in a Nov. 29 game but the official score book showed Port Washington a 38-to-37 winner.

Emswiler held that OHSAA rules specifically make the score book the last word... So the game was awarded to Port Washington... Emswiler pointed out that officials are supposed to examine the tally sheet immediately after the end of a game... With that decision, Stone Creek's seasonal record became 16 straight losses.

Although Ohio has 88 counties, you'll find only 86 class "B" basketball tournaments this month within the Buckeye borders... Cuyahoga holds no county tournament... while Preble slips over to Richmond, Ind., to play in Earlham university's field house...

Wood county has the most teams, 21, and Columbiana the least, 3. The High School Athletic association's strictly rationed state tournament plan of one game a session is drawing plenty of comment... most of it favorable from communities who feel they will be assured of seeing their favorites in action... Even the usually smoky Coliseum atmosphere should be improved with time to clear between sessions...

Ohio Wesleyan's famous relays won't be jeopardized after all by the Ohio Conference rule against members sponsoring high school meets... When the Bishops re-enter the conference next year, the high school athletic association will take over sponsorship... said 29 game but the official score book showed Port Washington a 38-to-37 winner.

The 1947 Ohio amateur golf tournament will be held at Congress Lake near Canton July 14-19... The layout is a tricky, accuracy-demanding par 71 course... If all dates are sanctioned, Ohio will have the most independent harness race meetings in history... Five tracks have requested dates in addition to regular fair sessions...

CAPITAL NEEDS WIN TO REMAIN OHIO LEADER

By International News Service

An evening of considerable import confronts Ohio collegiate basketball leaders and would-be leaders tonight. Standing to gain or lose the most is Capital university, scheduled to meet a dangerous Muskingum quintet.

Possessed of somewhat lesser stake in the evening's doings are the Muskies, Akron and Findlay. Capital will be defending the top spot in the Ohio conference, claimed now with a record of eight victories and one defeat.

The Lutherans will also be seeking to tie Mt. Union as holder of the best record in the state. The Purple Raiders achieved a 10-and-2 mark Tuesday; Capital can equal that record tonight.

Should the Lutherans lose, Akron could claim the conference lead with a victory over Kent State tonight. The Rubber City team has six triumphs and one loss in league play. Muskingum, with a 7-and-2 conference record, needs a win over Capital to stay in the run-

Finds A Home

AFTER traveling 600 miles in search of his master, who went down in the wreck of the schooner Tondelayo, off the Georgia coast, "Teddy" who survived the disaster, finds love and attention. He turned up on the doorstep of Mrs. Franz Neville, Baltimore, Md., (above), and has decided to stay. Teddy's owner was Fred Danforth, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was lost in the wreck. (International)

THIRD GAME MAY BE FEATURE IN CITY CAGE LOOP

Blue Ribbon Dairy and Eshelman Feeds game, set for 8:30, is expected to be the feature attraction at tonight's City Industrial basketball league program in Roll and Bowl.

Blue Ribbon won the first round title by not losing a game but has been beaten in the second round. Eshelman's is unbeaten in the second round and the Feedmen are planning to hand Blue Ribbon another defeat.

Robtown Stock Farm is favored in the first game at 6:30. Tarleton AC will provide the opposition. At 7:30 p. m. Ashville KP is expected to defeat Five Points.

The 9:30 game, between Eagles and Pickaway Dairy, should provide plenty of fireworks.

Stone Creek 5 Loses On Hardwood and On Paper

BY JOHN BARRINGTON
INS Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 6 —

Scrambled scribbles from the sports samovar... Consider for a moment fate's most forgotten step-child... Our nominee is Stone Creek of Tuscarawas county... That unfortunate class "B" basketball team not only loses every time it ventures onto the hardwood... it even drops games on paper...

Stone Creek was shorn of its only 1946-47 "victory" when High School Commissioner H. W. Emswiler ruled in favor of Port Washington in the matter of a disputed score... Stone Creek claimed a one-point win in a Nov. 29 game but the official score book showed Port Washington a 38-to-37 winner...

Emswiler held that OHSAA rules specifically make the score book the last word... So the game was awarded to Port Washington... Emswiler pointed out that officials are supposed to examine the tally sheet immediately after the end of a game... With that decision, Stone Creek's seasonal record became 16 straight losses

Although Ohio has 88 counties, you'll find only 86 class "B" basketball tournaments this month within the Buckeye borders... Cuyahoga holds no county tournament... while Preble slips over to Richmond, Ind., to play in Earlham university's field house...

CAPITAL NEEDS WIN TO REMAIN OHIO LEADER

By International News Service
An evening of considerable import confronts Ohio collegiate basketball leaders and would-be leaders tonight.

Standing to gain or lose the most is Capital University, scheduled to meet a dangerous Muskingum quintet.

Possessed of somewhat lesser stake in the evening's doings are the Muskies, Akron and Findlay. Capital will be defending the top spot in the Ohio conference, claimed now with a record of eight victories and one defeat. The Lutherans will also be seeking to tie Mt. Union as holder of the best record in the state. The Purple Raiders achieved a 10-and-2 mark Tuesday; Capital can equal that record tonight.

Should the Lutherans lose, Akron could claim the conference lead with a victory over Kent State tonight. The Rubber City team has six triumphs and one loss in league play.

Muskingum, with a 7-and-2 conference record, needs a win over Capital to stay in the run-

A FEW moments later Janet and Cliff stood on the end of the dock, watching the plane taxi to midstream. It swung slowly into the wind, floated motionless for a second, then gathered speed as the engine roared, and the pontoons rose heavily from the river to disappear over the jungle trees. Madison had left for the coast.

Janet gave a little laugh of sheer relief. "It's gone." She took a deep breath; her eyes were shining. "It's gone, and we're still here. Don't you think I'm some use after all?" She was saying this to Cliff, who had seen her, happy in the knowledge that they were at liberty to stay at least for another day. She had won a reprieve for both of them, but at a price Cliff found galling to pay, and remembering that price, he said shortly, "Did Madison break the glad news that I have accepted the conditions you put him up to?"

Apparently unresentful of his bluntness, she answered, "He told me you said I could stay here and work for you. I know you don't like that. I know you don't want me here."

"I don't believe it makes any particular difference to you whether I want you or not. I've agreed that you're to stay. But you might as well know that it looks to me as if you're taking everyone for a ride to suit your own personal goal. You persuaded the Rubber Division in Washington to send you down to help me, although you didn't give a hang whether you really helped me or not. Now you've persuaded Madison you're to be wished onto me. I don't want you, but I've got to take you. You've used the Rubber Division, you've used Madison, and now you're using me. But there's this about it. If you're on my payroll, and supposed to be working for me, you'll work."

He stopped. He had never seen her eyes so bright, and for an appalling instant he expected her to weep; but instead she stood quite motionless, then she drew a long, deep breath, and to his amazement she smiled. "I'll do anything you say," she murmured.

He looked at her suspiciously. She was much too meek, and he hurried on. "You're here because of a cold-blooded business proposition between Madison and me. I don't like it, but I had to take it because that was the way you wanted it. So don't expect favors. I'm here for rubber, and you're here for something else. Maybe it's Madison—I wouldn't know."

Again that ghost of a smile came and went. "So you think I'm pursuing Madison?"

It was on Cliff's tongue to say that she seemed to have already caught Madison, but he only answered, "How should I know? I know less about you every hour. But there's just one thing we both better keep straight—the minute you interfere with my work, you and I are going to tangle. And if I have to, I can get tough."

She glanced at the square line of his jaw. "I believe you can." She nodded soberly, then, "When do I start work?"

NO PLACE for WOMEN

A FEW moments later Janet and Cliff stood on the end of the dock, watching the plane taxi to midstream. It swung slowly into the wind, floated motionless for a second, then gathered speed as the engine roared, and the pontoons rose heavily from the river to disappear over the jungle trees. Madison had left for the coast.

Janet gave a little laugh of sheer relief. "It's gone." She took a deep breath; her eyes were shining. "It's gone, and we're still here. Don't you think I'm some use after all? She was gayer than Cliff had yet seen her, happy in the knowledge that they were at liberty to stay, at least for another day. She had won a reprieve for both of them, but at a price Cliff found galling to pay, and remembering that price, he said shortly, "Did Madison break the glad news that I have accepted the conditions you put him up to?"

Apparently unresentful of his bluntness, she answered, "He told you, said, said stay here and work for you. I know you don't want me here."

"I don't believe it makes any particular difference to you whether I want you or not. I've agreed that you're to stay. But you might as well know that it looks to me as if you're taking everyone for a ride to suit your own personal goal. You persuaded the Rubber Division in Washington to send you down to help me, although you didn't give a hang whether you really helped me or not. Now you've persuaded Madison you're to be wished onto me. I don't want you, but I've got to take you. You've used Madison, and now you're using me. But there's this about it. If you're on my payroll, and supposed to be working for me, you'll work."

He stopped. He had never seen her eyes so bright, and for an appalled instant he expected her to weep; but instead she stood quite motionless, then she drew a long, deep breath, and to his amazement she smiled. "I'll do anything you say," she murmured.

He looked at her suspiciously. She was much too meek, and he hurried on. "You're here because of a cold-blooded business proposition between Madison and me. I don't like it, but I had to take it because that was the way you wanted it. So don't expect favors. I'm here for rubber, and you're here for something else. Maybe it's Madison—I wouldn't know."

Again that ghost of a smile came and went. "So you think I'm pursuing Madison?"

It was on Cliff's tongue to say that she seemed to have already caught Madison, but he only answered, "How should I know? I know less about you every hour. But there's just one thing we both better keep straight—the minute you interfere with my work, you and I are going to tangle. And if I have to, I can get tough."

She glanced at the square line of his jaw. "I believe you can." She nodded soberly, then, "When do I start work?"

"Right now. We're going with Wade and Lilli to the rubber plantations. Can you bring your sketch box and make a rough map of them for me?"

"I'll try."

"Then we start as soon as Wade's ready."

They started within an hour, all four of them in the long canoe, Cliff paddling at the bow, Wade at the stern, the two girls seated between. For over a mile Wade kept to the main stream, then turned up a narrow, winding tributary almost hidden by lianas. Behind them it was like a thick green curtain dropping, shutting them off within a world of hushed and dappled sunlight, tree-covered and vine-woven. Far away they could hear herons crying, and to their nostrils the breath of the jungle rose hot and moisture-soaked. Turtles slid lazily into the water as they passed, and at every bend slow-moving alligators watched them, undisturbed.

The fathomless, unconquered jungle. Over the years it had become Cliff's second home, yet he never lost that sense of being dwarfed to nothingness by its ageless, unchanging opulence, its vast indifference to the transient invasion of man.

Once, with a little exclamation of pleasure, Janet leaned forward and pointed—a hummingbird, scarcely larger than a bumblebee, indescribably exquisite, hovered stationary among the flowers.

The movement caused the canoe to tilt sharply, and with a dismayed, "Oh!" she moved back and began rearranging the colored crayons on her sketch box. Cliff saw the hunter's eye on her, and they seemed uneasy.

Cliff looked at Lilli. Here at least was one completely at home in the jungle, even more than Wade himself. This was her element. Back in the clearing, part of her seemed to be sleeping, but out here she had come marvelously alive, as if some new awareness quickened and stirred her, messages of scent and sight and sound that came pouring in upon her and were hers alone. She was a very part of the teeming, invisible life that went on about them, alert as any wild thing that dwelt there, and as subtly watchful—but always the slanting eyes returned to Cliff, maddening in the bow.

And she was in Cliff's thoughts. He remembered Wade's ambition to send her away to school, take her out of this environment which was the breath of life to her, and see her down amid the loneliness of cities, to trade the warmth and color of the jungle for the pale cold wisdom of books. He glanced back at her, and their eyes meeting, they smiled.

For three hours now they had been passing neglected, weed-choked banana plantations and small palm-thatched farmhouses, long abandoned and sinking into decay.

"Did the Blacklanders drive these people out?" Cliff asked.

Wade shook his head. "Just the opposite. The people who owned these farms were Blacklanders themselves. Madison's vaqueros made things so hot for 'em they moved away."

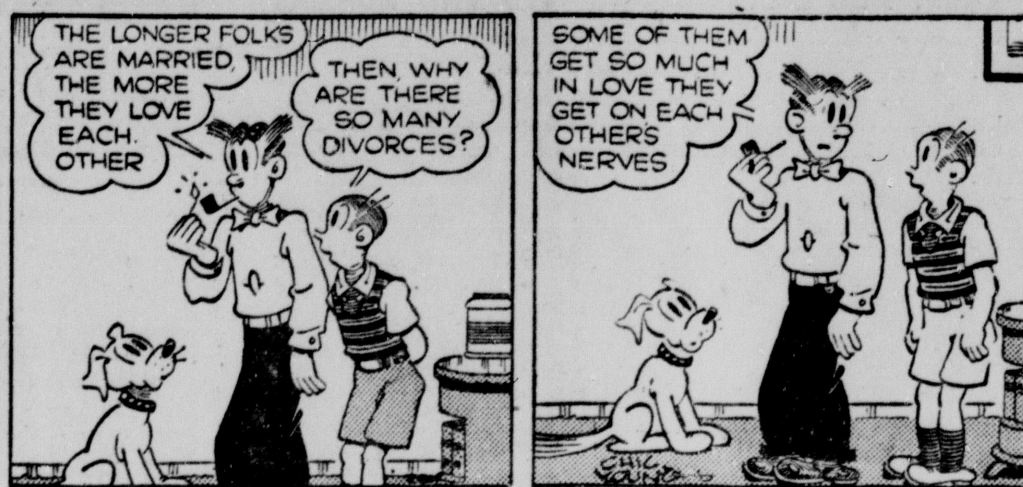

"Why?"

"It's like I told you. The vaqueros want all these river farms to raise feed for the cattle and fatten 'em before market time. They claim when the Blacklanders broke off from New Dixie they forfeited their rights to any land, and they're just squatters. So they shove 'em out."

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 — "Bon Soir."
Translated literally from the French into vernacular English it means... draw up a chair, honey, Jean Sablon is on the air. M. Sablon is France's latest

France is closely associated with the theatrical world.
Papa Sablon wrote musical comedies; a sister is a night club entertainer; a brother writes popular songs.
Jean turned to the Parisian theater and cafes as a song and dance man. In London, an American sponsor, calculating his romance in soap sales, hired him for a couple of trans-Atlantic radio shows. Then he began his international circuit which brought him to this country seven times.
Sunday "Blondie" show continues as a listener favorite, according to latest Hooper audience count. Blondie came through among the first five

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

On The Air

Arthur Lake has passed another milestone in his career as Dagwood, the bungling Bumstead of radio and screen fame. He has just finished his twentieth movie in that part, titled "Blondie's Holiday." His co-star in the movie and CBS klockwork "Blondie" series is Penny Singleton, who portrays the title role.

to Me', the gay drama to be heard on "Grand Marquee" Thursday. Olan Soule and Beryl Vaughan play the leads. Dagwood and his boss J. C. Dithers have a serious tiff which is patched up when "Blondie Speaks For Her Husband", in the comedy drama Sunday.

A fiendish plot to drive a man mad is unravelled by "Sherlock Holmes" in "The Adventure of the Persecuted Millionaire," Monday.

There is approximately 200 pounds of steel in the average household refrigerator.

Ruth Gilbert, who is heard as "Gertie," the pretty but dumb telephone operator on the "Perry Mason" mystery serial weekdays over CBS, is one of Broadway's brightest young actresses. She is now appearing as one of the stars in Eugene O'Neill's much discussed hit, "The Iceman Cometh."

gift to American womanhood, whose notion of romance is what every Frenchman has and every American is too busy to learn the art of.

One foot propped on Conductor Tutti Camarata's podium, the dark-haired mustachioed singer fairly breathes down the neck of the microphone, it's the way he puts that feeling of intimacy in his voice, whether it's a love song in French, English, Spanish, Portuguese.

Paris-born M. Sablon spent his youth on a farm in southern France. "There were four children, an organ and a piano in the family," so the elder Sablon felt it wiser to provide growing room. The name Sablon in France is closely associated with the theatrical world.

Papa Sablon wrote musical comedies; a sister is a night club entertainer; a brother writes popular songs.

Jean turned to the Parisian theater and cafes as a song and dance man. In London, an American sponsor, calculating his romance in soap sales, hired him for a couple of trans-Atlantic radio shows. Then he began his international circuit which brought him to this country seven times.

Sunday "Blondie" show continues as a listener favorite, according to latest Hooper audience count. Blondie came through among the first five

Whether the tea you drink is black, green or oolong, depends upon how it was processed after picking, and not upon the kind of bush it was picked from, nor the country or region in which it was grown.
